

Vintage Investment
Partners

View

Recent Highlights at Vintage 3Q 2022

Portfolio News

FUND PORTFOLIO

Accel closed a new, global, growth-stage fund with $4B in capital commitments. >

Amplify Partners raised $700M across their fifth early-stage and growth-stage fund. >

Bessemer Venture Partners announced a raise of $3.85B for their twelfth flagship fund, BVP XII, which will allow them to continue backing entrepreneurs at scale, while bolstering their established focus on early-stage investments. >

CRV launched two funds worth $1.5B to back early-stage companies. >

Cyberstarts announced the closing of Seed Fund III with $60M committed capital to invest in early stage cybersecurity companies. >

Designer Fund raised a $40M Fund III focused on amplifying design-centric, early-stage startups. The fund also announced its Designer Fund Partnership, a new investment and design support model for early-stage startups. >

Primary VC raised $425M across two new funds focusing on seed-stage New York city-based startups. >

Resolute Ventures announced the closing of Resolute V, a $100M seed and pre-seed fund. >

Redpoint Ventures raised $650M for their ninth fund, Redpoint Ventures IX. >

SCALE

Scale Venture Partners closed a new $900M fund to back software startups. >

COMPANY PORTFOLIO

Holidu collects over €100M in Series E funding round. >

Planck raised $71M to date to expand its first-to-market cognitive business analytics platform. >

Shopic raised $35M to bring its item-scanning 'smart cart' tech to more stores. >

SundaySky was acquired by US Private Equity Firm Clearhaven Partners for $100M. >

Unique Content

Barrel Kfir with Philippe Botteri, Partner at Accel

Listen

Abe Finkelstein with Dick Costolo, Managing Partner at 01 Advisors

Listen

Vintage in the Events

Asaf Horesh at SuperReturn

Asaf Horesh, General Partner at the SuperReturn Asia conference in Singapore, Asia's leading private equity & venture capital event. Asaf joined a panel discussing 'Key considerations for capital raising in 2022 and the future' alongside Andrea Auerbach, Partner and Head of Global Private Investments at Cambridge Associates, Hernal Mirani, Managing Director at the HarbourVest Partners Kenrick Guo, Director at Temasek and Sean Yoo, Head of Asia Investment at Hermes GPE.

Read

Vintage in the Publications

Alan Feld's TechCrunch article "Me too" Investing is Eating Returns"

Read

Alan Feld's article "Being a Venture Capitalist During a Market Decline: Lessons from Previous Economic Downturns"

Read

Noa Bloch's article "The Rise (and Fall?) of 'Access-Driven' Secondaries"

Read

Read (Hebrew)

Shira Eting's "Investing in Climate-tech, Why We Think This Time is Different"

Read

Asaf Horesh's interview on "Founder Storiez"

Listen

Vintage in the Community

Vintage hosted SULIS (a community designed to promote women into the world of high-tech and venture capital), Hamutal Meridor and Asaf Horesh spoke about their experiences entering the VC world and started a discussion about challenging the status quo and empowering more women to join VC and tech.

Shira Eting, Principal at Vintage, delivered a company presentation on "Investing in Climate Tech", offered some background into the climate change problem and examined the opportunities it creates for new technology and investing.

The Vintage team had the amazing opportunity to volunteer at "Yamin Orde," a youth village that fosters at-risk and immigrant youth. The day started off with a meaningful panel discussion with kids from the village sharing their life's challenges as well as their dreams for the future. Vintage team members also shared their personal challenges and paths that led them to their careers at Vintage. After the panel, the team spent the day building a new recreation area for the village with Ukrainian refugees. The experience was incredibly moving and impactful for both the children and everyone at Vintage.

Managing over $3.3B across 14 funds, and investing in the leading VC funds and startups in the U.S., Europe, and Israel

